

For Immediate Release

Contact:
Sarah Cullen
sarah@sidecarpr.com
303-931-1910

Elsy Studios Purchases New Office in Denver's Lower Highlands Neighborhood

New Offices Include Seattle Furniture Manufacturer's First Colorado Showroom

DENVER (March 18, 2015) Denver-based commercial interior design firm Elsy Studios closed on the purchase of a 4,000 square foot commercial office condo building located at 3528 Tejon Street in Denver's Lower Highlands Neighborhood. Elsy Studios' will lease part of the two-story building to Seattle-based furniture manufacturer Watson Furniture. This will be Watson's first Denver showroom.

Over the last two years, in order to meet demand, Elsy Studios has quickly grown into a 10-person firm. The new space will allow Elsy to continue on that trajectory of growth accommodating up to 20 employees.

"Elsy Studios has built a strong reputation for creativity and project delivery over the last two years," said Lynn Coit, president and founder of Elsy Studios. "This new office space will allow us to grow, and provide an even higher level of service to clients in a convenient and thriving central location. By leasing part of our space to Watson Furniture, we can offer an atmosphere filled with design inspiration."

The new property was immediately attractive to Elsy Studios, not just for its location but also for its visual appeal. The building was designed by Jim Bothwell in 2006 and was subsequently awarded a Denver Mayor's Design Award for the core shell.

The new office interior will include quiet rooms, height adjustable stations, benching, custom LED lighting and a number of the fun, inspiring finishes that Elsy has become known for including in its design projects.

Watson Furniture is a furniture design company headquartered in the Pacific Northwest that combines innovative product design with cutting-edge manufacturing techniques. The company focuses on great design, practical environmentalism and regionally sourced materials. For more information about Watson visit www.watsonfurniture.com.